SKIPPED THE TOWN.

The Chairman of the Selectmen of Bremen a Defaulter.

The Town Swindled Out of About $5,000.

DAMARISCOTTA, Me., May 27.—Daniel Keene, for the past seven years chairman of the selectmen and agent of the town of Bremen, also postmaster and trader, has disappeared and is said to be a defaulter to the town to the amount of from $3,000 to $5,000, besides owing various parties in the vicinity nearly as much more. He has always stood high in the community, as his repeated re-election to the board of selectmen attests. Some three or four years ago, however, a few citizens began to suspect crookedness from the fact that, notwithstanding the increased tax with no increase in expenses, the town debt steadily grew. This finally culminated in March last at the annual meeting, when a committee consisting of E. S. Perkins and Samuel Lermond was chosen to investigate the town accounts from 1875 to date, but at the same time so great was their confidence in Keene that he was re-elected on the board of selectmen though second. This position as well as that of postmaster he has since resigned, and at the May term of court he filed a petition in insolvency.

His methods of raising money were unique. One was to issue two town orders, bearing the same date and amount, when but one should have been issued, recording only one, and then collecting or selling the other and pocketing the proceeds. Another was the taking up of interest-bearing orders with new orders for larger amounts, representing to the board that the town needed more funds. The difference, however, he took and recorded the order, if at all, for the same amount as the original order. The third was to draw money from the treasury on his receipts as town agent, take up the orders, and at the close of the year in settlement with the town, take credit for the amount but retain the orders, and during the following year he would present these orders to the treasurer and secure the cash. He also issued orders bearing simply his name, and one for $5,000 has turned up, with the name of the second selectman forged.

About two weeks before the magnitude of the defalcation appeared, he was arrested by the town authorities, brought before a justice and put under $1,600 bonds for his appearance at the October term of court. He procured bail, but since then he has disappeared. His family remain in Bremen.

MAINE.

An Unwelcome Visitor.

ROCKLAND, May 27.—A large gray wolf has been seen at North Washington. The animal came boldly into a field where O. B. Collins and P. S. Collins were at work, and was with difficulty driven away. It was as large as a sheep. The wolf was of a dirty gray color with a long and bushy tail. He took to the woods, and men are after him with guns.

[Death of W. S. Gilman.

HOULTON, May 27.—W. S. Gilman, editor of the Aroostook Pioneer, died at 5 o'clock this morning. He was 54 years of age. He was born in Readfield, and served his apprenticeship in the office of the Maine Farmer at Augusta. In December, 1857, he, in company with Joseph B. Hall, started the Pioneer at Presque Isle, the first paper in the county. He soon became proprietor, and in 1868 moved the paper to Houlton. Success attended his efforts, and in March, 1884, he took his son George H. into partnership, and this son has conducted the paper since the sickness of his father. Although never a healthy man, he was nevertheless a diligent business man and of wonderful endurance. He leaves a life insurance of $5000, besides other property, to his wife and four children.

Augusta Salvationists Still in Trouble.

AUGUSTA, May 27.—Another Salvation Army uproar occurred here tonight. When the army advanced to the street to parade Capt. Thatcher led bearing a bass drum. After gaining the middle of the street he began to beat the drum, when the police arrested him and took him off to jail. A big crowd followed jeering and yelling. Thatcher says that he is prepared to serve a term in prison. The two soldiers of the army arrested Tuesday night were today released on bail.

The Governor and Council were in session yesterday and today. The pardon case of Billy Barlow, in State prison for breaking and entering, was heard. Hon. T. R. Simonton appeared in his favor. The council will adjourn tomorrow morning.

FALLING WALLS.

A Jersey City Tenement House in Ruins.

Maimed and Dying Tenants Buried in the Debris.

A Scene of Horror Long to be Remembered.

NEW YORK, May 27.—Shortly before 7 o'clock this morning, the three story frame tenement house, No. 76 Colgate street, Jersey City, N. J., fell with a crash. Five families were in the building, and more than one half of them had not risen from their beds. The first floor was occupied by the owner of the building, James Anderson, his wife and five children. On the second floor was Mary Webb and her two children, her husband being absent at the time. A portion of this floor was also occupied by John Coyne, his wife and seven children. On the top floor resided John Collins, his wife and five children, and Hugh McGurty and his wife; in all 28 persons. The scene that followed the collapse was distressing. Shouts for help from the men, and the shrieks of the women and children, some of whom were only partially buried in the ruins, alarmed the neighborhood. The fire department was called out and the work of rescue commenced. The residents on the top story were the most fortunate, as they tumbled out partly on top of the broken timbers. Some were pinned down by the legs or arms until released by the firemen. Those on the middle floor fared badly, one being killed outright, while the heaviest disaster befel the Anderson family on the lower floor.

The killed are Michael Webb, aged 17; Bernard Anderson, aged 10; Elite Anderson, aged 8; Mamie Anderson, aged 8 months.

The badly injured number nine persons. The house was known to be insecure, and Anderson had made arrangements to have it repaired next week. When the noise of the approaching collapse was first heard, Mrs. Anderson and her five children were in bed. She arose hurriedly, and arousing the children directed them to leave. Before they could do so the house fell with a crash. As quickly as possible the dead and wounded were removed from the debris. John Coyne was the only person so badly injured as to be sent to the hospital. The others were able to walk about and were cared for by the neighbors. Mrs. Anderson, who had managed to make her escape, stood on the sidewalk while the debris was being examined, and when the bodies of three of her children were placed in an ambulance she fell fainting into the arms of a friend. Hugh McGuffy, one of the tenants on the top floor of the house, said he had just got out of bed when he felt the house shaking. A moment later he heard a creaking noise, and the walls began to crack. He remembered nothing more until he was taken from the ruins.

THE INDIANS.

The Apaches' Trail Marked by the Bodies of Murdered Ranchmen.

Navajoes, Utes and Piutes Joining the Hostiles.

TUCSON, Ari., May 27.—A despatch received here says that thirty Indians passed near Deming yesterday, heading for Mexico. The cavalry are in close pursuit. The bodies of five Americans who had been killed by the Indians were found at Blue River on Monday. The stage which runs between Eagle and Grafton mining camp in Black range, has not been heard from and it is thought that it has been captured by Indians.

DENVER, Col., May 27.—A despatch received from Santa Fe, New Mexico, says that last Saturday the Apaches killed two men at Coutwell and Peterie ranches on the Gila river, and on Sunday afternoon they killed Charles Stephens, foreman of Alby and Ogusall's ranch and Harvey Moreland, son of James Moreland, who lived between Grafton and Fairview. Their bodies were found about 6 miles north of Grafton. When discovered they were still warm. Moreland had been shot several times, and when found was lying on his back with an iron rod driven through his head into the ground. Frank Adams saw the hat of George Adams, a ranchman residing near Fairview. The hat was found near the bodies of Stephens and Moreland, and its owner is supposed to have been killed.

A despatch from Winslow, Arizona, says that about 160 Navajols, Utes and Piutes, all thoroughly armed and with war paint on, camped near Hardy's Monday night. It is reported that they are making preparations to join Geronimo's band of braves.

Later information from Winslow indicates that the Hostiles are on Diamond creek northeast of Fort Bayard in the Black mountains. Col. Morrow, and a number of scouts are in that vicinity. Col. Biddle, with a battalion of the 6th cavalry, is near Hillsboro and Lieut. Davis with 60 White Mountain Apache scouts is on the trail of the hostiles.

DRIVEN FROM THEIR HOMES

An Immense Furniture Factory in New York City Burned.

Five Hundred Men Thrown Out of Employment.

NEW YORK, May 27.—The vast furniture factory of H. Herman & Bros., at Mangin and Tompkins streets, was discovered on fire at 3 30 o'clock this morning. It was a five story brick building and was surrounded by tenement houses occupied by the poorest classes in the city. The fire was intensely hot, and nearly a hundred families were driven from their homes. They rushed out in their night clothes and were compelled to camp near the river. At 4 o'clock the whole building was in flames, and, as there was no hope of saving any of the property, the firemen directed their efforts to make the miserable people as comfortable as possible. The fire was so hot that several times water had to be turned on the firemen to prevent them from being scorched by the flames.

It was not until 5.45 o'clock that the fire was declared under control, and then there was little left to burn in the building except what remained of the brick walls and the debris of the material that was contained therein. The engineers were kept at work nearly all day, however, playing on the ruins. Mr. Herman estimates his loss at about $250,000, which is covered by insurance in a large number of companies. The loss on the building, which is owned by the Singer Sewing Machine Co., will be $30,000, insured. Five hundred skilled workmen were employed and they lose all their tools, the aggregate value of which is about $20,000, and on these there are only scattered sums of insurance. The damage to the adjoining property will aggregate $25,000.

THE OLD WORLD.

LONDON, May 27.—Mr. John Stetson, the American theatical manager, has signed a contract with Mr. D'Oyley Carte to take his company to the United States and produce Gilbert & Sullivan's new opera "The Mikado" in New York and Boston, beginning sometime in October. Mr. D'Oyley Carte starts with his company for the United States about the first of October.

Turkey and the Soudan.

It is asserted that the English proposals recently offered to the Turkish Envoy, Hasson Fehma Pasha for the occupation of the Soudan by Turkey have been declined by the Porte. Pehma Pasha returned to Constantinople from Soudan with the proposals on the 14th inst., after having had an interview at Paris with M. De Freycinet, French minister of foreign affairs, who assured him that the French government would oppose Turkish occupation of the Soudan over which the Sultan claimed suzerainty. The refusal to accept the proposals offer the assurance received from Freycinet causes surprise.

OXFORD BEARS.

Fourth Annual Reunion of the Association.

Addresses by Hon. John D. Long and Others.

The Association of the Sons and Daughters of Oxford County held its fourth annual reunion at Gilbert's Hall last evening. At 8 o'clock sharp, a large number of the bears took their seats about the bountifully spread tables, and an hour was spent in discussing the viands.

President J. J. Perry called the meeting to order at 9 o'clock and made a few appropriate remarks. He spoke as follows:

GEN. PERRY'S REMARKS.

Gen. Perry gracefully welcomed the guests, reviewing the formation of the association, and congratulating those present upon the large gathering and the pleasant memories revived by each annual meeting. In the course of his remarks he said: "Again, in the witchery of our dreams, we hear the tinkling bells from lowing herds, as they wend their way from the hillsides and valleys to the old thatched-roofed barn, at the close of the day; we hear the wild notes of the milkmaid's evening song, and the voices of the reapers shouting their harvest home. But we not only dream dreams, but see visions. The old homestead, with the 'old oaken bucket that hangs at the well,' comes up in the background. Inside of the old cabin, after the evening's frugal repast, we behold the father, with wreaths of smoke from the old family pipe, curling up over his grey locks, the mother at the distaff, Joe holding converse with old dog Tray, while Molly is flirting with the kitten. The blazing, cheerful hearth is testifying to the virtues of pitch knots, whose splendid light puts far in the shade the modern, dear-bought inventions of electric lights and noxious gas."

Gen. Perry then introduced ex-Gov. Long of Massachusetts. Mr. Long was warmly greeted and was frequently applauded during the delivery of a speech of half an hour's duration. The following is an abstract:

GOV. LONG'S ADDRESS.

Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen:

I confess, Mr. Chairman, that unaccustomed as I am to these festival occasions, yet I was downright glad to get an invitation to this one. If there was ever a thorough-going provincial; if there was ever a native of the country that was loyal to rural life, if ever a bear went out of rugged Oxford county that never lost his sweet tooth for her honey, I claim to share in that distinction. Did not, Mr. Emery, your father and mine interchange their rhyming muses over the hills of Paris and Buckfield? Was I not born in one of Oxford's nestling cradles, in a village lovelier than sweet Auburn, loveliest village of the plain,—in a happier valley than the Abyssinian seclusion of Rasselas—by the side of one of Oxford's streams whose music sung me, a child, to sleep, and has sung in my dreams ever since,—under the exquisite elms that are the grace of her landscape, and among the fairest hills that ever broke the golden sunsets of the west or lifted the luxuriant foliage of a Maine summer? Did not Old Streaked teach my youth the glory of the mountains as well as feed me with the nutritious and wholesome blueberry? Did I not graduate at Hebron Academy, and do I not recall that temple of learning as the most imposing architectural pile and spire that ever awed a school boy? Was it not there I stammered my first declamation, and in a very still small voice thundered Cicero's question to Catline, demanding how long he proposed to abuse our patience? Was it not at Hebron that the song of the frogs and the glow of the fire fly associated themselves forever in the mind of a homesick lad with a tender melancholy which to this day they never fail to revive, little as you would suspect it from my personal appearance? Was it not at a poverty stricken term at Hebron that my father wrote to me, referring to his own struggles in lines which I recall:

"How I was poor and lame and lean,
Wore homespun clothes of bottle green;
Your grandsire's wedding coat resigned
Turned inside out and patched behind;
My brother Tom's old vest of blue,
Five summers after it was new;
How I could drive no costly team,
Of coursers swift or go by steam,
But rode an old plug bareback double
Three miles an hour without much trouble,
With saddle-bags in which to carry
My clothes and books and stationery;
In one end Cicero and Sallust,
In t'other shirts and hose to ballast;
And how I travelled to recite
Two miles at morning, two at night,
Because I could not then afford
To pay the price of a nearer board,
Or people nearer did not choose
To take their pay in making shoes."

Why, sir, Oxford county to me is a volume of poems, a paradise of nature. Her crests of blue against the summer sky, and in winter white with glistening snow, her pure waters, her cool woods, her picturesque roads winding over hill and down dale, her exquisite intermingling of forests and farms are such a natural park of loveliness and magnificence as no metropolitan wealth or art can ever imitate. A returning native of Buckfield once astonished "us boys" by bragging that he "had been to Saco, Biddeford and New York." I have myself been to those remote confines of civilization. I have travelled hundreds of miles across Western wastes where no living thing resorts, and no water runs, across prairies where with all their mighty herds of cows and oxen you get no good beef because it is all sent to your cities and markets, and no milk except condensed milk from the East—prepared I dare say in Oxford county. I have seen the stagnant and red, muddy waters of the Rio Grande. I have, at the risk of being mocked in and drowned, rocked in a railroad car across the swamps of Louisiana. I have in artless Mississippi been cheated by the childlike and blank freedman into buying bitter oranges—fair, but like some other fair things, full of deceit. I have ridden a day's journey through the pine barrens of Alabama and Georgia, where the very trees wept over their own loneliness and mutilation, and were turpentine at that—great drops of resin coursing down their scarred cheeks. I saw the trees with their long, ghostly Southern moss that seems to make the whole landscape a graveyard of the war. I have heard the midnight alligator howl at the monotony of a Florida landscape, and I envied his lungs. And all these scenes are certainly nothing to the glory and beauty of the Oxford hills, and of the lakes from which I am just returning. You who live in a city need no reminder from me of the sympathy that still links you with that home of your boyhood. There, and only there cluster the associations of the only home—the boy's home. It was there that you knew who lived under every roof in the village—knew the play-places in every garret and barn—perhaps the sweet recess of every family cupboard. It was there only a mother's love seemed to be the very sunshine that made the hollyhocks and wild brier roses grow round the porch. And it is there too that in a sort of illusion you still fancy you will one day return to live, or at least to rest, though you know that may not be. You would not lose out of your lives, however centered elsewhere, or rooted now in other social or business soil, the fragrance of your Oxford birthplace. I am sure you can say with me:

I ne'er shall forget when returning one day
To my home 'mid the mountains of Maine,
When the summer was nigh and the fair hand of May
Was bedecking the country again,
What a thrill of delight, inexpressibly sweet,
I felt while extending my gaze
O'er the scenes unforgotten, where often my feet
Had rambled in earlier days.

Oxford is a rugged land. Its soil is hard. Its snows are deep and long. Its wintry winds are bleak. Its returns are not those of wealth or luxury. Its sons and daughters are bears, if you will, but their homes were fine with the honey of honest labor, of plain living and high thinking. For one I love it a deeper debt. Enlarging and educating as were its physical influences, I lay my tribute still more gratefully to the living influences of its people. In American life and struggle, I believe there is no such education as that of a country boy's contact in school and at all times with this social democracy of a country such as Oxford county typifies—absolutely meeting the ideal of a free and equal people, and ignorant of such a thing as caste or class. Add to such a democracy the elements of the education of the common schools, the unfettered exercise of religious freedom, the popular political discussion of the street corner, the store and the hay field, the frequent vacancies of leisure, the common knowledge of men and things, the splendid ingrained inheritance of English common law ripened into the maxims, habits, converse and system of the people, the absence on the one hand of any great accumulations of wealth and on the other of any consciousness of the deprivations of extreme poverty, and especially that unconscious unreserve and inarticulacity of intercourse which made the hewer of stone the free and easy, if not superior disputant, as well as companion of the owner of the field—add all these and you have an atmosphere of education, out of which no boy could emerge and not have a fitting for future life such as the metropolis with its schools, the university with its colleges, could not give—a homely familiarity with the popular mind, an inbred sympathy with the masses, not artificial or assumed, but a part of character itself and a helpful agency in public service or in useful conduct in life. Its fruits you see to-day and for years have seen in the elements which from rural counties like Oxford have gone into the busy avenues of our national life and given enterprise, growth, success, to the business, to the government, the literature and the progress of our country.

Yes, my friends, I believe we are here to utter our gratitude to the men and women who gave a popular tone to Oxford county, worthy of her hills and the grandeur and strength of her physical magnificence. My gratitude is from a full heart. I recognize, with profound emotion, the resolute, generous and fruitful purpose and force which our fathers put into their farms and water-courses and trading posts. I look back and behold worth and high-mindedness and character driving the oxen in the field, cutting the wood, tending the saw mill, leading the training field and the election, doing the neighborly turns and kindnesses, even bartering the worsted mitten over the counter, and making the wholesomest texture of a pastoral provincial life the world has ever seen or ever will see—the ideal combination of industry, equality, freedom, intelligence and high character.

We talk nowadays of poverty; we pity our city full of poor; we create and foster our associations of charity. And yet you have among you in this great city hardly a family so scanty in their means, so comfortless in their homes—thanks to the inventions, improvements and distributions of modern times—as the pioneers of Oxford county less than a hundred years ago. We little realize the rapid spread of those means of making life easier, which of later years have given to the poorest hearths comforts which then the richest did not dream of. It was the best blood of Massachusetts—pure English stock, little changed even to this day, the best families of Pilgrim and Puritan descent—that after the Revolutionary war made their way to Oxford county; but, like all pioneers, they had little of this world's goods, and brought little except their splendid inheritance of worth and character, their brave hearts and honest, hard-working hands. How illustrative of all this straightened circumstance is the story of that half fisherman and half shoemaker, pestered by debt, and at last selling his little farm in the mother commonwealth, and with his wife and brood of children, his kit and scanty household furniture, sailing by packet from Plymouth to Salem, and thence journeying overland in a pioneer's wagon, which held all he had, 150 miles into the uplands of Oxford county, Maine, in 1796. How often my father, God bless him, has told me of their arrival at the foot of the mile-long hill, at the top of which was the journey's end, with its cabin and half-cleared farm; of himself—six years old—and his elder brother running barefoot ahead of the team to get the first glimpse of their future home—a cheerless enclosure of boards, but to them a paradise—stopping now and then to pick the thistles from their hardy little feet.

There is a famous picture painted by a French artist called "The First Arrival." It represents a lofty cliff overlooking a landscape of the richest luxuriance and itself affluent with vines and sunshine. On it are the crumbling walls of an ancient castle that even in its ruins suggests the pomp and circumstance of opulence and power. A gay party of youths and maidens have clambered up to look at it and from it. Foremost, the first to arrive, outstripping her lover, is a beautiful girl, richly dressed, herself a flushed dream of loveliness, a child of affluence and luxury, who for one brightsummer morning spices the ennui of satiety with a fresh touch of nature and the pure breath of the mountain air. It is a rare picture and yet I wish some artist might draw, as I in imagination can see, that poor, ragged, bare footed boy who had never known a luxury of food or clothing, or amusement, whose feet were torn with thistles, who climbed that Oxford hill and who, though he looked not on baronial castles or landscapes luxuriant with vines, yet thrilled with a New England boy's pride in his father's freehold and with a New England boy's prophetic unconsciousness, if I may so say, of a chance and a future for him also in the world as well as for the most favored child of fortune—for him a Latin grammar, though a borrowed one—for him an entrance into the academy—though for but a single term—for him a place in the community and a claim on its respect and honors—and for him at least the means to give his own children the opportunities of education and learning which had been denied him. If. Pardon me if I recall this and the universal hardships of those days—the great families of children—the narrow means—even the neighborly lending and borrowing from the pork barrel—the foolings knit of winter nights to buy the poor luxury now and then of groceries from the village, the rude unfinished house round which the snow-blast howled the green wood drawn from the night's snow drift and cut and split to make the morning fire on the open hearth, the coarse, plain, unvaried fare, the long hard, poorly paying journeys to distant markets, the stress of debt, the tugging strain of years to turn the wood-lawn into tillage, and yet, running through all this toil and privation and hardship, an infinite cheer and humor, and also the courage, the Pilgrim earnestness, the religious faith, the love of family and country, the hope and sacrifice for children, the inborn instinct of the freeholder, which redeemed and glorified all else and today command our respect and pride as the qualities of no other ancestry could. If it was poverty it was not the poverty of dependence or charity or disparagement in any form, but poverty with independence and pride, living within such means as was its own, and finding enough even at that with which to build the church and the academy, to keep the law, to have the school-master, to buy a book, to get the contents of the newspapers, to understand the elements of constitutional and common law, to vote honestly and intelligently, to go to the legislature, to discuss in town meetings the affairs of town and State and country, and to fill out the full measure of the enlightened citizen of the republic. I do not forget that there were other and very marked shadings of the picture, but this was the sort of men who were most distinctive to Oxford county and who gave it character. What a splendid look it was! What sturdy English names—those Mitchells, Lincolns, Holmeses, Lorings, Emerys, Parsons, Taylors, Cushings, Halls, Bicknells, Perrys, Washburns, Hamlins, Atkins, Mor

After a careful computation it has been ascertained that one fourth class postmaster is ousted every five minutes, Sundays included.

A Boston paper speaks of ex-Consul General Frye as Senator Frye's brother. This is a mistake. Senator Frye had but one brother, and he died about twelve years ago.

A change in administration may after all have an advantage. The Louisville Courier-Journal calls upon the new minister to Switzerland to investigate the William Tell story and write back the actual facts.

The Internal Revenue Collector for the district of New Hampshire is the only one left in New England to tell the tale. The reason for this is that New Hampshire hasn't as many Chases, Pillsburys and Troups as the other states.

The "noblest Roman of them all" is quoted as saying that he would not only not accept a nomination for Governor of Ohio, but would not serve if elected. He is a Democrat, There must be some mistake about this.

The New York Times goes a little ahead of the other Mugwumps in imputing all the obnoxious appointments to the wicked Cabinet members. This rather knocks out the supposition that the Executive dominates the administration. We shall expect to soon hear of the President as Miss Cleveland's brother.

There is a stampede of saints from Salt Lake City. During the last two months 250 prominent polygamists have quietly stolen away, one having made his exit disguised as an old woman. To the saints this is "persecution," but to the impartial observer it is but the rigorous enforcement of the United States laws.

It is said a son of Brigham Young is in New York trying to negotiate with eastern capitalists for the sale of the Mormon lands in Utah. The intention is said to exist, if the negotiations prove successful, on the part of the Mormon leaders to emigrate to Mexico taking with them so much of the Mormon congregation as are willing to go. We have no grudge against Mexico but we can't help wishing that Young's negotiations may prove successful.

Mr. Timothy Twigg is so prominent a character in this city that it is impossible to forget him. Some weeks ago a rumseller was released by the marshal, Mr. Twigg becoming security for his appearance. We have searched the court records published since that time for the name of this rumseller, in vain. Apparently he is still living at large under the protection of Mr. Twigg. It appears to us that Mr. Twigg has borne this responsibility about long enough, and ought to be relieved from it forthwith by taking the aforesaid rumseller into court.

Mr. John Roach has written the following letter to the Secretary of the Navy:

Your letter of the 2d inst. relating to the trial trips of the Dolphin, is received. Although I consider, and it appears very plain under the terms of the contract, that my liability ceased and all conditions required of me were complied with in the termination of the trial of March 10, still I am very willing, as I have previously stated to you, to do all in my power to satisfy you as to the efficiency of the ship, so far as I am responsible under my contract. For this purpose the trial on Long Island Sound will be made on the 28th inst., as you direct, and the other at as early a date thereafter as practicable.

That does not sound like a man who is seeking to cheat the government by palming off upon it a worthless ship. But hardly a day passes in which epithets are not applied to Mr. Roach only befitting a convicted felon.

Last Sunday the army paraded with drums and cymbals, singing and brandishing their colors. This was in direct defiance of the directions of the mayor, so it was resolved to arrest the whole crowd the next time they should appear on the streets. The army did not come out Monday but last evening issued from their barracks with their usual uproar.—Advertiser.

Apparently the above information is derived from either Mayor Deering or Marshal Andrews. The most of it is incorrect. The Army did not parade last Sunday with drums or cymbals, and if Mr. Deering or Mr. Andrews had asked Deputy Marshal Black or Deputy Marshal Crowell they could easily have ascertained the facts. Both of these officers followed the Army Sunday on both of their parades and both of them state positively that no drums nor cymbals nor any other musical instrument were used or even carried. It looks very much as if the authorities finding that their act of Tuesday night is not proving popular are now trying to make it appear that the Army were arrested for a parade on Sunday. Unfortunately for the success of this game it is alleged in the warrant that the offence for which the Army was arrested was committed on May 26, which was Tuesday and not Sunday. We observe that in some quarters an attempt is making to create an impression that the Army was arrested on account of complaints of citizens. We have heard the names of several people suggested. One of them came into this office last night and indignantly denied that he had ever made any such complaint. Very likely there have been complaints against their Sunday parades with music, and there ought to be. The Army ought not to be allowed to beat drums in the street on Sunday. But we do not believe that a single complaint has come from a citizen of Portland in regard to their week day parades. The whole performance emanated from the gentleman on the quarter deck.

The Salvation Army and the Public Peace.

The city ordinance, under which the Salvation Army were arrested, reads as follows:

No person shall in any street or other public place, make any loud and unusual noises by shouting, sounding horns drums, or any instrument or thing * * * under a penalty of not less than five nor more than twenty dollars for each offence.

This ordinance, if literally construed, can be made to cover almost every parade that takes place in the city from one year's end to the other, for with very few exceptions, a prominent feature of every one is a band beating drums and sounding instruments. It amounts to a complete prohibition of parading in the public streets, for no municipal officer is given power to grant a permit under any circumstances whatever.

The ordinance has been in existence for a long time, yet the bands connected with theatrical troups, blonde troups, circuses, skating rinks and various other shows have paraded the streets at their own sweet pleasure without let or hindrance. Who ever in the city of Portland before Tuesday night heard of the arrest of a band of men for marching through the streets beating a drum?

What, then, is the secret of the sudden enforcement of this ordinance in the case of the Salvation Army? Is the work they are engaged in more detrimental to the public welfare than the work of a variety theatre? Why should a woman who marches up the street shaking a tambourine under the impression that she is doing God service be snatched by the police and locked up, while a man is permitted to blow a blast on a cornet to attract people into a show which is certainly not calculated to elevate the morals of the community to any great extent? These are pertinent questions calling for answers on somebody's part.

COPPERHEADS AND MEMORIAL DAY.
North American.

The good people of Rondout, N. Y., are somewhat annoyed, and not unreasonably, at the prospect of having the Decoration Day observances in that place conducted by prominent copperheads, as certain of their citizens are emphatically termed. The blending of the blue and the gray at these ceremonies was a feature which a few years since was justly hailed as marking an era of reconciliation, but to go beyond this and entrust the management of Union services to rebel sympathizers is a sadly backward step.

The Veiled Mystery.

[Washington Letter in Philadelphia Telegraph.]

There is one woman in the Treasury who has attracted much attention on account of the mystery surrounding her. She has been in the Department for years—not less than ten—and though she is marked by everybody I have never met anybody who has seen her face. It is the talk of the clerks brought most in contact with her. She is a woman of magnificent presence, a tall, fine figure, and one of the most perfect forms I have ever seen. Her appearance is that of a woman who might possess remarkable beauty, but she always has her face enveloped in a thick veil. In the office or out, at work or walking through the halls, the veil is never removed, and the efforts of her inquisitive fellow-clerks to peep under it are vain. Many susceptible young men, struck by her fine figure, have quickened their step to catch up with her in the halls only to find her face hid from sight. No one can tell whether she is old or young, but she is probably not "very either." The motive for concealing her features is not known. Whether, like the "Veiled Prophet," she seeks to hide a vision of ugliness, or whether she has some other reason, is a mere matter of conjecture. Some say that her face once comported with the promise of her form—that she was exquisitely beautiful—but was a victim of small-pox, which so disfigured her face that she is ashamed to show it.

HE FELL IN THE STREETS

KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY

Cures a Terrible Case of Gravel When Other Help Failed.

What is Gravel? what causes it, and who are most liable to it? It is frequently attended with acute pain, and unless relief can be found, produces inflammation and death. Both sexes and all ages are liable to it, although men who have reached or passed middle age are its most common victims. Nothing is more urgently needed than a reliable medicine for Gravel, as the disease seems on the increase, and we are glad to say that such a specific is now before the public in the form of DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, of Rondout, N. Y. We put in evidence the following letter, selected from many similar communications:

PITTSFIELD, MASS., March, 1884.

Dr. David Kennedy:

DEAR SIR:—You have a right to know, and I desire the public to know my experience with Gravel and my remarkable recovery through the use of your "FAVORITE REMEDY." I am a carpenter living in this place, and there are plenty of witnesses to the truth of what I say. My first comparatively slight attack of Gravel was in the year 1878. It passed away, and I had little more trouble until last July, 1883. One day when at work in my shop I was suddenly seized with a keen and terrible pain in my left side. I consulted two physicians at once. One said "I can do nothing for you. Your case is incurable!" I was frightened went to the second, who said little, but gave me a prescription. It did no good.

Then began a series of experiences the agony and horror of which words cannot depict. Think of it! I was sometimes taken in the street, and would fall, writhing with agony, upon the sidewalk. It was death in life. "Thank heaven, I then heard of KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY," through Mr. P. P. Cooley. I had not used half a bottle when I passed three stones in succession, one of which was nearly one half an inch long. I persevered with the medicine, the symptoms gradually abated, and I have had no more trouble since. I am well, thanks to you and "FAVORITE REMEDY." Yours most gratefully,

JAMES D. KENNEDY.

What "FAVORITE REMEDY" did in this case it has done in many others. If you desire to do so Address—Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout N. Y.

THE PRESS.

THURSDAY MORNING, MAY 28.

Wit and Wisdom.

"My son," said a tutor stern of aspect, but of doubtful morality, putting his hand on the boy's shoulder, "I believe Satan has got hold of you." "I believe so, too," said the boy, "and you'd better take your hands off me."

M. L. Blair, Alderman 5th Ward, Scranton, Pa., stated Nov. 9, '83: He had used Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil for sprains, burns, cuts, bruises and rheumatism. Cured every time.

A good old deacon in Connecticut was very pious and very fond of clams. When once upon a time he attended a Rhode Island clambake, he overtaxed his capacity and was sorely distressed. But his faith in prayer was unabated. Leaving the party and going down on his knees behind a tree, he was heard to supplicate: "Forgive me, O Lord, this great sin of gluttony. Restore my health and I will never eat any more clams." Then, after a judicious pause, "Very few, if any. Amen."

Ten years before any of the baking powders of the present day were thought of, the Congress Yeast Powder had a large sale throughout New England.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

Review of Portland Wholesale Marke

FOR THE WEEK ENDING May 27

Flour is dull and not held as firmly as last week; sales have been very small and it would be difficult to place large lots without concessions of from 12½ to 25c ₱ bbl. The market for Grain has been unsettled, and during the week prices of all kinds have been reduced, not on account of lower rates West, but owing to cutting in freight rates. Sugar opened strong and higher, afterwards declined a fraction, later a firmer feeling prevailed and prices advanced to 7¼c for granulated, at which figure the market closed firm and still tending upward, with Extra C at 6¾c. Advices from abroad report firm and advancing markets, with trade active both in cane and beet. In Provisions the market is lower for Pork and Lard with a moderate business doing. Beef has been steady at unchanged prices. Teas are quiet with an easier feeling on Formosa grades. The demand for Molasses has improved and the market is firm and 1@2c better. Java Coffee is unchanged, but Rio grades are firm and about ¼c higher. The retail Coal trade is dull and unsatisfactory; prices are not quite so firm as noted last week, but the leading dealers have been asking $3 ₱ ton in small lots for the best grades of stove coal; we look for a decline this week. Cumberland Coal is selling at 4 50@4 75. Cheese is ½ to 1c ₱ lb under previous figures at 9½@11½c, according to quality; some new stock arriving. Green Apples have advanced 50c ₱ bbl, choice lots now quoted at 3 50. Dried Apples slow and weak. Bananas are quoted in a jobbing way at $1½@$2 ₱ bunch. Dry Fish dull and lower. Fresh Fish have been scarce the greater part of the week; this forenoon Cod and Haddock sold from boats at 1½c ₱ lb, but in the afternoon dropped to 1c ₱ lb. Fresh Beef steady; sides at 7½@9c ₱ lb, hind quarters 10½@11½c, fore quarters 5½@6½, rounds with flanks 8½c; rounds at 9½c, rumps and loins 12@15c, rumps at 12@13c, loins 13@16c, rattles &c6c, backs at 6½@7½c, chucks 5@5c, short rib cuts at 10@12c. Mutton 8@9c.

ALFRED, Wednesday, May 27.

Mary A. Lincoln, libellant, vs. Amos A. Lincoln. Libel for divorce. Cause, gross and confirmed habits of intoxication. Divorce decreed, and custody of minor child given to mother until further order of court.

All the civil cases marked for trial at this term having been disposed of, the criminal business was taken up yesterday afternoon.

The first case was that of the State vs. Michael Scanlan and David Morris, who were indicted at this term for breaking and entering a car standing upon a side track of the Boston & Maine railroad at Saco, on the 3d of the present month, and stealing therefrom nine bags of meal.

The government offered testimony to show that the carload of grain was received at Saco, and placed on the side track May 2d; that the door of the car was secured at night by nailing; that at about 4 o'clock the following morning the watchman in the yard discovered the respondent Scanlan, standing beside the car, the door of which was open, with several bags of meal upon the ground; that when accosted, Scanlan gave no satisfactory answer, and that he was soon after arrested by Deputy Sheriff Joseph W. Small, who the watchman had called to his assistance. That with Scanlan in custody, the watchman and the deputy sheriff visited the house of Morris, where they found two bags of meal in a small room in the house; that Morris was found near by the house and arrested; that both of the respondents were intoxicated at the time, and both had meal upon their clothing; that a hammer was taken from the person of Morris after his arrest, with which the breaking was supposed to have been effected; that the prisoners attempted to escape on the way to the station house, but were secured and locked up.

The respondent, Scanlan, testified that on the night in question he had attended a ball in Marble Hall in Biddeford, where he drank liquor several times with Morris and another man; that after the ball he went to the house of Morris, where they both drank more liquor; that he, Scanlan, then laid down and slept for an hour, or an hour and a half. When he was awakened by Morris coming in; that they then drank again and he started for home; that he did not remember anything further until the watchman accosted him as he was lying upon the bags of meal near the car; that the watchman left him, but soon returned, when he arose; that the watchman again left him, and he went to an embankment near by and laid down for a short time, and then arose to go home when he was arrested.

The respondent, Morris, testified that he attended the ball at Marble Hall on the night in question; that he met Scanlan there; that they drank together; that after he had returned home, after the ball, Scanlan came to his house and they drank more liquor; that Scanlan laid down and slept an hour and a half or two hours, when he aroused him and advised him to go home; that they drank again and Scanlan left; that he (Morris) then went out to obtain some hop beer, and on returning was met by the officer and arrested. He testified that he knew nothing of the bags of meal which were found in his house; that it was a mystery how they came there.

Counsel for the respondents offered the further defence that the existence of the Boston & Maine railroad in this State as a corporation and the ownership of the property, had not been sufficiently proven.

In charging the jury this morning, the Court ruled that the court and the jury were bound to take judicial notice of the existence of the corporation as charged in the indictment, and that this corporation was authorized to take and deal in property as other railroad corporations in this State, and that it was not necessary that the State should prove that the railroad company was the owner of the property in question, but that it was sufficient for the government to prove that the property was in its possession at the time of the alleged breaking and entering.

After being out one hour the jury returned a verdict of guilty against both of the respondents. Counsel for the respondents will file exceptions, and the case will go forward to the law court.

Hamilton & Haley, Donovan & Ross.

Frank M. Hugins, county attorney.

Callie A. Coffin, libelt., vs. Charles H. Coffin. Libel for divorce. Cause, utter desertion, continued for three consecutive years prior to date of the libel. Divorce decreed.

B. F. Chadbourne for libelant.

Nicholas O'Brion, who pleaded not guilty in the lower court August 8, 1884, to a complaint charging him with the keeping of intoxicating liquors with intent to sell, and appealed to this court, retracted his plea of not guilty and plead guilty, and was sentenced to pay a fine of $100 and costs. Fine and costs paid.

In the case of State vs. Moses T. Smith of Dayton, for arson, assigned for today, owing to the sickness and the absence of important witnesses, the government were unable to proceed. The respondent insisted upon an immediate trial, and a nol pros was entered. In this case a hearing was had in the municipal court at Saco Nov. 12, 1884, and the respondent was then bound over to the January term of the court at Saco. The case was tried at that term and the jury disagreed. Respondent discharged.

Hamilton & Haley for respondent.

Frank M. Higgins, county attorney.

George W. Lovewell, libelt., vs. Martha A. Lovewell. Libel for divorce. Cause, utter desertion. Divorce decreed.

L. S. Moore for libelant.

Nellie E. Knox, libelt., vs. Charles R. Knox. Libel for divorce. Cause, utter desertion. Custody of minor child decreed to libelant.

S. C. Hobbs for libelant.

Charles C. Dennis et al, petr's for review, vs. Chester H. Graves et al. Petition dismissed by agreement. Settled.

W. F. Lunt for petitioners.

John B. Donovan for deft.

The schooner M. M. Chase arrived from a mackereling trip yesterday with eighty-eight barrels.

Capt. Jones has put the Clarence in commission and took out a large party yesterday afternoon.

Handsome suits for the Dirigo Rowing Club have been furnished by Owen, Moore & Co. The suits consist of blue jerseys and knee pants of the same color.

The Salvation Army paraded last night, beating their drums, as usual, not in a spirit of defiance, but as part of their religious exercises.

A man, said to be an employe of the Electric Light Company, passing Deering, Milliken & Co.'s, Tuesday, ran into a young woman, hitting her accidentally in the back with a pick he carried on his shoulder. She was knocked senseless, and was taken into Deering, Milliken & Co.'s, and after being resuscitated was taken home.

When payment is not made in advance regular rates will be charged. The large circulation of the PRESS makes it the best medium for these advertisements.

The Murphy Case.

The policeman who handled Mr. Murphy, at the arrest of the Salvation Army Tuesday night, as well as the deputy marshals, deny that any violence was shown Mr. Murphy. The policeman says that it was Murphy himself who had the child in his arms on the sidewalk; that as the army passed Murphy said "There's my wife and I'm going to get her." He stepped up to lead his wife from the ranks when the policeman stopped him and told him he could follow with the child to the station, but he couldn't take her away then.

Accident.

Yesterday forenoon at about 11 o'clock, as Mrs. Geo. Libby and her little boy were walking on Middle street, the child ran into the roadway and fell in front of a grocer's wagon. The team was pulled up just in time to prevent the wheel from passing over the child's body, which was struck by it. Mrs. Libby who came near fainting, and the child were carried into Hay's drug store and Mr. Libby sent for. The mother and son were taken home in a carriage.

CHAMPIONSHIP SHOOT.

Exciting Contest on the Willard Club Grounds Yesterday.

W. S. Jones, of Peaks' Island, Carries Off the Trophy.

Yesterday, upon invitation of the Willard Shooting Association, delegates from the clubs at Richmond, Topsham, Brunswick, Pownal, Lewiston, Bethel and Portland, to the number of twenty, assembled at 9 a. m., on the grounds of the Willard Association at Falmouth, to shoot for the individual championship of the State.

The day was superb, and just the weather for good shooting. The regulations were fifty clay pigeons, one barrel, and the prizes were an elegant silver ice pitcher for the championship, nine dollars in cash for second, and six dollars in cash third prize. The shooting resulted as follows:

W. S. Jones of Portland, of the Willard Club, gained the championship, making 38 out of a possible 40. A. S. Alexander, of Richmond, of the Riverside Club, took second prize, making 37 out of 40. The third prize was divided between C. F. Nason and A. Verrill of the Androscoggin Club, Lewiston.

Two sweepstakes were then shot of five clay pigeons each. In the first, A. P. Gould of the Riverside Club, took first, J. F. Randall of the Willard Club, and A. Verrill of the Androscoggin Club, divided second, and Mr. Winslow of Topsham, took third. In the second sweepstakes the first prize was divided between Messrs. Gould and Verrill, Mr. Alexander won second, and Mr. Hunnewell of Pownal, third.

An excellent dinner was served by the Willards, which was thoroughly enjoyed by all present.

IN COURT.

The Salvation Army Discharged on Their Personal Recognizance.

Yesterday morning, at 9 o'clock, a large crowd assembled to listen to the hearing in the case of the members of the Salvation Army arrested on Tuesday night on a charge of disturbing the public peace, in violation of the following ordinance:

"No person shall, in any street or other public place, make any loud and unusual noises, by shouting, sounding horns, drums or any instrument or thing. * * * under a penalty of not less than five nor more than twenty dollars for each offence."

It is claimed that this ordinance applies to secular matters and not religious, since no city ordinance can be enacted which trenches on the rights given to individuals by the constitution of the United States.

Hon. C. F. Libby appeared at the request of one of the army, known as Hallelujah Barber, for their defence, and Mr. George F. Townshend for Mrs. Murphy and others. After a long consultation, Judge Gould said the army would not be tried this morning, and those who came to witness the trial could go. A few left. Later Marshal Andrews brought in the army, and they gave their personal recognizances in the sum of $50 each, for their appearance on Wednesday next. The army then filed out, and with colors flying, but without beating their drums, marched to the barracks on Middle street.

It is said that some weeks ago the judge of the municipal court intimated that in his opinion the Salvation Army could not be held under the above ordinance.

Peaks' Island.

This season will witness many improvements at this lovely summer resort, and the hammer and saw is now heard on all sides. New cottages have been built and are in process of construction by Messrs. Hovey, Jos. C. Sterling, Wm. P. Sterling, Wescott, the popular engineer on the P. & R. Railroad, and S. D. Brown of this city, and Messrs. Randall and Shattuck of Natick, Mass.

Mr. Sawyer, the genial proprietor of the Peaks' Island House, has built a large addition to that popular hostelry, 83 feet long and two stories high, adding 15 rooms, including a nice large kitchen. Mr. Sawyer will now be able to accommodate 150 table boarders, and has sleeping accommodation for 70 people. He will furnish a dinner to the 5th Maine Regiment Association at their reunion on Wednesday, June 24th, during encampment week.

Mr. Pyne's bowling alley has had an additional story built on, and will be used as a billiard room.

The theatre is rapidly being finished, and instead of the canvas covering used last year, is being roofed in properly.

The electric light machinery plant it is proposed to move in order to make room for a roller coaster, similar to the one at Old Orchard, and which was so popular there last season.

The steamboat company are talking of enlarging the wharf accommodations, and building a railing around the steep descent to the beach near the landing.

In the Garden, the restaurant has added a large veranda. Knowlton has got many of his animals in their cages, and there are additions in the shape of a baby monkey and a litter of the wild cat. A large cage is being built for him near the observatory, and by next week everything will be in good order.

It takes three horses and teams to do the work from the landing in hauling goods, lumber, etc. Mr. Littlejohn is always at the wharf on the arrival of the boats. The weather is delightfully cool, and the summer residents are beginning to come. A profitable season's business is anticipated, and preparations are being made to accommodate the large influx of visitors expected.

Satisfactory Fire Alarm Test.

The committee on fire department were of the idea that the engines called out by a second alarm, from a different box than that from which the first alarm was sounded, would start for the first box, not stopping to count the second alarm, and last night determined to give the matter a test. Accordingly Chairman Gallagher and Messrs. Beal and Birnie went to Box 7, corner of Oxford and Mayo streets, and pulled in an alarm at twenty-five minutes past nine. It seemed but a moment before the street was filled with excited people. Fireman Brown, who was there a minute after the alarm struck, wanted to learn who had struck it, and a man in a store and one in the house were the only persons who had a key, and neither of them had opened the box. He was quietly informed how matters stood. In just two minutes after the alarm had been sounded Casco 5 put in an appearance, followed in less than half a minute later by Portland 2. Machigonne 1 was five minutes in getting there, the indicator in the house denoting Box 6. The ladder trucks were all prompt.

A a few minutes later an alarm was sounded from Box 61, corner of Green and Cumberland streets, rung in by Chief Engineer Cloyes.

It was just 9.27 o'clock when Box 7 had ceased ringing, and Chief Cloyes pulled Box 61. The idea of the committee was to see how the boys read their indicators. They perhaps imagined some of the companies might think it a second alarm from Box 7, and run to that. If they did they were disappointed, for the pieces of apparatus that respond to Box 61 appeared all right. In just three minutes Engine 4's hose carriage arrived at the box, followed at intervals of about half a minute by the following pieces: Engine 3's hose cart, Hook and Ladder Co. No. 3, Engines 3 and 4. Only one driver said he was a little mixed, and he said he wanted to run to Box 7. Engine 4 came from Spring street, the others from Brackett street.

The promptness and correctness with which the alarm was answered shows that our fire department is in a high state of efficiency, and they are deserving of much credit for their action.

The Infantry's Anniversary.

The Bath Light Infantry on their visit to this city as guests of the Portland Light Infantry on June 6th, the eighty-second anniversary of the Portland Light Infantry, will bring as guests a number of the prominent citizens of Bath, among whom are Hon. James W. Wakefield, Mayor of Bath; ex-Mayor Geo. H. Nichols, Postmaster William E. Hogan, Dr. Edward M. Fuller, Hon. John G. Richardson, John W. Ballou, Esq., sheriff of Sagadahoc county, Henry Houghton, Esq., and others. All honorary and past members of the Portland Light Infantry who have not received invitations to be present on the 6th are most cordially invited.

ON THE ROLLERS.

ALAMEDAS VS. BIJOUS TO-NIGHT.

The Alamedas will be here to-night with their strongest team to play the reorganized Bijous. A hard and hot game may be looked for, as these two rival teams always play their best when pitted against each other. The Bijou team will be Dow, Orne, Foster, Dunn, Williams and Smith. Reserved seats on sale to day at the rink. There will be skating before and after the game, as usual. The house should be packed, as this will probably be the last great game of the season.

THE NATIONAL ENCAMPMENT.

Last Night's Meeting of the Executive Committee—Important Business Transacted.

The Executive Committee of the Department of Maine held a meeting last evening at their headquarters, with a goodly number present.

Col. I. S. Bangs, chairman of the committee on hotels, reported that all the delegates to the encampment had been assigned quarters at the hotels.

General George L. Beal, chairman of the committee on camp, reported that he had assigned quarters in camp for 10,300 men, and could furnish accommodations for 14,000. Comrades from this State will be put in camp by counties, subject to change by the committee. Col. Edward Moore was added to the committee.

Comrade C. A. Coombs, of the transportation committee, reported that his arrangements were all concluded, and proved satisfactory to all the committee.

Comrade H. P. Ingalls, of the canvassing committee, reported that he had 1,000 rooms at his disposal in all, some of which had been taken. His canvassers are now at work in the business part of the city, looking up vacant rooms, stores and lofts.

Col. I. S. Bangs, committee on badges, has contracted for 800.

The committee on invitations added to their list of those already sent out, and mentioned by us, the Secretary of War, and the Secretary of the Navy, with a request for him to send to this port all the men-of-war that he could that week; also Generals Hancock, Pope and Schofield, Governors of the New England States, New Jersey, Michigan and Wisconsin, with their chiefs of staff; officers of all railroads who have tendered the committee any courtesies, and Mayor J. W. Deering.

Gen. Geo. S. Beals was made chief marshal of the parade.

An invitation was extended to George L. Blake, Commander of the Division of Maine, Sons of Veterans, to take part in the parade.

Capt. Geo. H. Abbott, committee on music, reported that he had engaged Chandler's Band for the week.

The committee on excursion reported that they had planned for free excursions Wednesday and Thursday to the rank and file down the bay. We understand the ladies of the Relief Corps are to have a trip by steamer Thursday.

Comrades Melcher, Gatley and T. A. Roberts were appointed as a reception committee to Commander-in-Chief Kountz.

Comrades Moore, C. W. Roberts and Whitman Sawyer were appointed a committee to select 150 of our citizens to act on the committee of reception with those already appointed.

Most of the evening was spent in discussing the programme for the week, which will be about the same as published yesterday. It will be sent to Adjutant General Alchorn for his approval.

We were shown a sample of the invitations designed by Secretary Sawyer. It is to be of beveled card board double. On the first leaf will be the list of the full executive committee, and the invitation on the second, both to be tied together with ribbons.

Other Matters.

The White Mountain Battalion of New Hampshire will be composed of the following Posts: Post No. 2, Concord, 50 men; No. 23 Lisbon, 40 men; No. 35, Ashland, 40 men; No. 36, Lake Village, 30 men; No. 37, Laconia, 100 men; No. 40, Bristol, 20 men; No. 42, Plymouth, 25 men; No. 47, Conway, 50 men and band of 24 pieces; No. 48, Littleton, 40 men; No. 54, Meredith, 25 men; No. 55, Whitefield, 20 men; No. 16, Lancaster, 25 men; No. 68, Sandwich, 10 men; No. 62, Tilton, 25 men; No. 38, Franklin Falls, 40 men; No. 75, Rumery, 25 men; a total of 590 men.

A. J. Holbrook, of Post No. 68, Boston, and E. T. Bacon, of Post 11, Boston, were at headquarters yesterday.

By accident, the contribution of ten dollars of Edwards & Walker to the National Encampment was omitted from the list of hardware dealers' contributions in yesterday's PRESS. This is all the more to be regretted, as Messrs. Edwards & Walker secured the contributions.

The Woman's Relief Corps of the Department of Missouri will be represented in this city by Mrs. Helen Rich of St. Joseph, an accomplished lecturer, and author of a collection of poems lately by G. P. Putnam's Sons, under the title of "A Dream of the Adirondacks."

AN OLD PORTRAIT.

Supposed to Be the Work of an Old Master.

While travelling in New Hampshire last summer, Mr. Payson, cashier of the Merchants National Bank, stopped at a little tavern in one of the country towns where he espied, behind the door of the dining-room, an old portrait which excited his curiosity. The more he examined it, the more certain he became that it must be the work of an old master. The owner said he bought it for a trifle at the auction sale of the Rev. S. H. Riddell's effects, at the time of that gentleman's death at Tamworth, where he had been settled for the thirteen years prior to his decease. The tavern-keeper said he had builded air-castles on the picture but had never made his fortune off of it.

Mr. Payson bought the portrait and began to hunt up its ancestry. He discovered that the ancestor of Rev. Mr. Riddell was one of three brothers who came to America in 1737 from England. The family dated back to the Norman conquest, had obtained a barony at one period, was referred to by Sir Walter Scott in the "Lay of the last Minstrel," and also that in the possession of the family were documents relating to certain of their members of a former century from the hand of Pope Adrian. Mr. Riddell, the owner of the portrait at the time of his decease, had been editor of the Boston Recorder, and secretary of the American Educational Society.

The portrait is that of Cardinal Borromeo, canonized by Paul V. in 1610. The Borromeo islands, those fair like resorts in Lake Maggiore, are familiar to all Italian travellers and on the charming Isola Bella stands the monument to the saint, while a rock-crystal casket at Milan, contains his remains. The cardinal was noted for his virtues and for his noted reforms. His greatest work was standing by the city of Milan during the plague of 1576, superintending the burial of the dead and care of sick when the local magistrates fled the city.

The canvas is very much worn but the coloring of the picture has remained fairly vivid. The face is that of a devotee, and the features are those of a man of marked character. The flesh-tint is solid and accurate. The expression is strong and earnest. The pose of the head is that of a man bowing in awed reverence before the crucifix, which bears the body of the Savior, and seeming to obtain some divine recognition that others if present, could not have seen. There is an intensity in the gaze, that is that of a religiousu enthsiast. The nose is very prominent and peculiar, the expression of the mouth and chin, with the thin line of beard and moustache, that of an ascetic. The forehead is broad, high and noble. The figure, which is a half-length, is clad in the scarlet robes of a cardinal, and the hands are clasped as in prayer These hands are exceedingly well done. Mr. H. B. Brown, the artist, thinks that a part of the dress may have been retouched. The director of the palace of art at Milan has written to Mr. Payson and asked for a photograph of the picture. He says many distinguished artists of the period, took portraits of the cardinal. The artist's name on this portrait cannot be deciphered.

Portland Savings Bank.

At the annual meeting of the Portland Savings Bank today the following trustees were reelected:

Oliver Gerrish, Jacob McLellan, Weston F. Milliken, Geo. E. B. Jackson, James P. Baxter, F. E. Barrett, E. A. Noyes.

The board subsequently organized with the choice of Oliver Gerrish, president, and E. A. Noyes, treasurer.

The treasurer's report showed that the amount received from depositors the past year was $1,281,551 29; paid to depositors $957,076 23; increase of deposits May 1st was $5,486,529 81.

The Argus and the Salvation Army.

The Argus of yesterday, speaking editorially of the arrest of the Salvation Army, says:

"It appears to us that the Mayor did an exceedingly foolish thing in ordering the arrest of the Salvation Army last night. It savors petty persecution. The Salvationists, though not agreeable to many people in their ways, are harmless and well behaved folk. There is no more justice in arresting them than in arresting a hundred other noisy processions, like minstrel bands or political torch light processions, that infest our streets. Let all be served alike. If paid hire lings are permitted to disturb the peace of the streets the same privilege should be extended to zealous men and women worshipping God after their own fashion—grotesque though the fashion be."

GAMBLERS IN LIMBO.

The Police Successfully Raid a Portland Faro Bank.

Late last night Deputy Marshal Black with a squad composed of officers W. R. Frank, Newcomb, Warren, Hussey, Frith and Greely, proceeded to the building No. 84 Union street and effected an entrance upon a warrant issued by the Marshal. The officers had no difficulty until at the top of the second flight of stairs where they encountered a door made of three inch plank and secured by a heavy bar on the inside. The jimmy in the hands of Officer Frank was used vigorously for fully ten minutes before making any impression on the door. At last, however, the door yielded, the casing coming with it and the whole partition being started. The officers found three well furnished rooms, provided with all the appliances of the game known as faro. The occupants had made good use of the little time at their disposal and a part of the paraphernalia, together with some of the men, was stored in the garret. Ten men—the occupants of the rooms—their tables, seven or eight hundred chips and various other pieces of the machinery of the establishment found their way to the police station. The man against whom the warrant was sworn out was not found in the place. All the men will come before the Court this morning. The raid was successful and the forcing of so heavy a door, studded as it was with wrought iron nails and strengthened by a stout bar, showed commendable pluck.

Personal.

We are glad to hear that Mr. Winsor B. Smith is improving rapidly.

Dr. W. R. Evans, who has been dangerously ill for the past three or four days, is now much better.

Officer Freeman T. Merrill, so long day turnkey at the station, but more recently placed on a beat, has been restored to his old position.

The Secretary of the Treasury has granted permission to Hon. Charles H. Chase, Collector of Internal Revenue, to have rooms for the internal revenue offices in the Custom House.

It is reported that D. H. Thing, Esq., of Mt. Vernon, is going to Washington to see about the distribution of offices in the third district.

Frank E. Brown, son of S. S. Brown of Waterville, has been appointed and commissioned postal clerk in place of W. R. Barker, removed on the route from Boston to Portland, and will enter upon the duties of the office at once.

The following arrivals were reported at the Falmouth last night: Gen. Jno. T. Richards, Gardiner; M. McAuley, Canada; ex-Mayor Hamlin, Bangor; J. Maclaren, Buckingham, Cal; Col. W. M. Beal, Boston; R. H. Matson, Toronto, Can.; Col. I. S. Bangs, Waterville; H. H. James, Thos. Kellogg, New York; W. A. Crombie, Burlington, Vt.; W. H. Symes, Boston; C. S. Bacon, Worcester; A. Wheeler, Lowell; Hon. J. A. Anderson, Gray.

Sergeant Leffman, who died in Youngstown, N. Y., May 14th, aged 88 years, was born at Bremen, Hanover, and as a soldier in the Bremen Battalion fought at Quatre Bras and Waterloo, receiving three wounds. He enlisted in the British army, remaining there until 1824. Soon after he enlisted in the army of the United States, where, after more than 53 years service he was placed on the retired list. Since 1842 he has been at Fort Niagara, much of the time in sole charge of the post and its valuable stores. He served prior to that time at Houlton and Augusta.

At the meeting of the Universalist Club in Boston Tuesday, Rev. Dr. Bolles, formerly of this city, responded to the sentiment "The Ladies." The speaker thought that he had the most inexplicable subject anywhere to be found. He had explored all the fields of mythology, religion and history and had discovered in them all nothing to solve his difficulties. So true it is that that which is most near and dear to us is most mysterious. However abstruse it is nevertheless a most welcome theme. This festival assumes a higher aspect than that of meeting those who are only infrequently present. We are coming to recognize in woman her superior gift of intuition, the proudest endowment of Heaven. Woman supplies the perfume to the beautiful flower of the church. When the face of the mother of Jesus was turned toward the face of her Son as He hung on His cross, may we not believe that she saw through the suffering the glory and honor of her Divine Son? Let us always consider our ladies as we remember their great labors for humanity, not merely the guests of this club but more—the honored members and helpers of the Universalist Church.
